Messrs. A. G. Brace & Co.—I had a valuable horse that about three weeks since was wounded severely in his thigh, with a sharp hook, opening a gash three inches in length and an inch or more deep. I tried various articles to heal it, but inflamation getting into it caused large quantities of inatter to collect, and the limb was quite stiff. A friend of mineasked meif I had tried the Mustang Liniment to which 1 replied in the negative, but thinking it might do some good, was induced to try it. I had only used one half bottle when the inflamation began to be removed and the wound to heal. Now it is entirely healed and the hair is growing over the wound, making it look as well as ever—Hoping that others may be benefitted by a trial of your valuble compound, I remain yours, CHAS. E. PRICES—The Liniment is put up in 3 sizes, and retails for 25 cents, 56 cents and $1 per bottle. The 50 cents and $1 size contains 3, and 6 times as much as the 25 cent size—the large size being much cheaper.

Still the angel stars are shining,
Still the rippling waters flow,
But the angel-voice is silent
That I heard here long ago,
Hark! the echoes murmur low
Long ago Still the wood is dim and lonely, Still the plashing fountains play, But the past and all its beauty, Whither has it fied away? Hark! the mournful echoes say Fled away

Still the bird of night complaineth (Now, indeed, her song is pain,) Visions of my happy hours, Do I call, and call in vain?

Hark! the echoes cry again
All in vain! Cease, oh echoes, mournful echoes, Once I loved your voices well! Now my heart is sick and weary, Days of old, a long farewell! Hark! the echoes sad and dreary

Cry farewell, farewell!
[Household Words. Fun in California.

There is a little paper printed in San Diego, California, called the San Diego Herald-an ordinary grave paper, that went into the support of John Bigler for Governor, and that was not suspected of ever being inclined to fun. The editor's name is J. Judson Ames, a country judge and a moderate man. Lately-before the election-he took it into his head to go on a tour to another part of the State, to electioneer probably for the democratic Bigler, and entrusted the Herald during his absence to the charge of John Phœnix, Esq., a gentleman of that ilk, known in this vicinity by the name of Derby.

But the Judge had forgotten to inquire into the nature of Mr. Phœnix's politics, and the first thing the new editor did was to change the political character of the Herald by running up the Whig flag, bearing the name of William Walda for Governor. THE great Spring Medicine and Purifier of the Blood is bearing the name of William Walda for Governor. now used by hundreds of grateful patients, who testify The Judge's consternation may be fancied. He immediately wrote back a letter to Phoenix, telling him to bring the Herald back to its allegiance; whereupon Phœnix declares his democracy—that his support of Walda was a mietake, and asks forgiveness, avowing himself ready to "embrace democracy with ardor, slap her on the back, and declare himself in favor of erecting a statue of Andrew Jackson on the plaza."

"Whatever is, is right, (says Phœnix,) as the old gentleman sweetly remarked when he chopped off the end of his nose with a razor, in the endeavor to kill a fly that had lit thereon when he was shaving," and applies the remark to the election of Bigdirectly, cause San Diego to assume its proper position as the first commercial city of California, I shall reverence the name of John Bigler forever, and I A large number of certificates of remarkable cures performed on persons residing in the city of Richmond, Va., by the use of Carter's Spanish Mixture, is the best evidence that there is no humbug about it. The War in the East.

From the New York Express 30th ult.

Facts, instead of fictions, seem at length to be the staple of the Intelligence that now comes to us from the banks of the Danube. The war between the two powers has now fairly begun, but where or when it is to end, nobody is prophet enough to foretell. The Mahommedan troops, so far, if the accounts that come to us are correct, have opened the campaign in a blaze of glory that gives them a prestige for the fu-ture. The Russian Bear, it is evident, had underrated the prowess of his antagonist, but the result of the combat at Oltenitza has by this time given him some useful knowledge on that score, which will be likely to govern his calculations to more auspicious conclusions hereafter. It is acquiring information at a rather dear price, however, in the loss of some 3000 troops. Flushed with a succession of brilliant victories, the Turks, at last dates, were moving on to attack Galatz, a seaport of some importance, in the province of Moldavin, on the left bank of the Danube, between the mouths of the Sereth and the Pruth. It has been invested by the Russians, and it is to dislodge them, and to drive them from thence, from off the Turkish soil, that the troops of Omer Pacha have taken up their march. The prayer of pretty much all Europe, we imagine, is, that victory may again perch upon their banners

Meanwhile, what will be the effect of these ignominious defeats at St. Petersburgh? If Turkey begins the campaign thus successfully, single-handed, and alone, what might she be expected to do with such backers as Great Britain and France? Such an imposing combination might be expected to appal a Prince less headstrong and boldly ambitious than the Emperor Nicholas: but after what has already taken place, it is greatly to be doubted that his audacity is unequal to that contingency, all formidable and imposing as it is. An alliance between England and France, Nicholas may not extravagantly assume, is an unnatural one at best, and can not long endure .-Besides, there are possibilities of a renewed revolution in France, which might be greatly prompted by the involvements and embarrassments of a foreign war .-If these possibilities ripen into realities, of course the entente cordiale with England must necessarily be at an end, and England would hardly undertake to carry on the war on her own account; but if she did, her resources might be so exhausted, by a well managed attack upon her empire in India, that her powers, on land or on sea, might be shorn of its present and traditional formidableness.

But dismissing these calculatious, the Emperor may argue,-what it the Western powers really enter the lists? They cannot invade my territory. They cannot damage me, at home. Their fleets would find it difficult matter to reach me by the Black Sea, at least during the winter season. They may send their steamers through the Hellespont, into the Black Sea There is nothing to fear, therefore looking at the enemy in his most threatening attitude. The war must go on! So we think, is the proper interpretation of Nesselrode's last note, and particularly the ex-"Te Deum Laudamus.—Judge Ames has return- pression upon which peculiar emphasis is laid-" IT BENNETT & BEERS, No. 125 Main St., Richmond, Va. JOHN MITCHEL'S DESCRIPTION OF SAN FRANCISCO. -"Here, on the spot where I stand—here, where five years ago a solitary ship sometimes visited a lonely bay of the ocean, at the back of the globe, fairest daughter of your great republic was yet un-born when I fell asleep. The rapidly expanding value of property in growing town, as well at the constant change in the relative value of different portions, by the addition of improvements, and from other causes, has seemed to demand, and has received, the attention of the Legislature, by an act of which assessments in the town of Wilmington are made bi-ennial. This, we think, is but just and proper. There is another matter, however, to which we would wish to call the attention of the powers that be, or that are to be, after the election for Commissioners-by the way, a responsible and honorable but somewhat thankless office: we mean the propriety, and-we might add-policy, of having at least two censuses taken, at periods occurring equi-distant from the decennial census taken by the United States, and from each other. The imports of the fiscal year 1853, including spe cie, have been $267,978,647, and the exports have been $236,452.250. A fair estimate for profits on our exports and the freight of our vessels would cast the balance of this account in our favor, without estimating the money brought in by emigrants, of which no account is taken. The table of tonnage, which also accompanies this report, shows that our tonnage s now 4,407,010 tons, and exceeds that of any pre-ceeding year by 280,000 tons. Should these reommendations be adopted, our naval force will be materially strengthened by the addition of two first class sailing frigates, and of several first class steam frigates, capable of mounting 50 guns each-there being no steamer at present of more than 10 guns. The Secretary is of opinion that it would be sound policy to dispose of such vessels as are deemed unfit for service as vessels of war.

Mr. Dobbin attributes much of the failure of one ational steamships to the contract system, and recommends the establishment of national machine shops. To the restoration of flogging in the Navy he is decidedly opposed. He advises a retired list discharge of the inefficient, promotion of merit, pay ments and honorable discharge to sailors as a means of encouraging longer enlistments. The various other recommendations of the distinguished Secretary are udquestionably such as to commend themselves to the judgment of the military man, but of less interest to the general reader, as are also the REMARKABLE CASE OF SUPPOSED PETRIFACTION .-Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in this city, an oblong box represented to contain a corpse, and it struck us as somewhat singular, it weighed five hundred and fifty pounds, according to the freight charges upon it. Curious to know something more about the mysterious box than the external marks indicated, we instituted some inquiries, and derived the following information, which as we got it from pretty good authority, we are inclined to consider correct until we shall receive a better explanation.

Each chair is entirely independent of its neighbor; at a first glance it presents much the appearance of a mere comfortable chair for sitting purpos es, but a closer inspection-or what is better, a fair trial-satisfies the traveller of its important advantages. Each seat is furnished with a sliding head rest which can be adjusted, without trouble, to suit he stature of any passenger, whether he hails from Brobdinag or from Lilliput. This rest, which is made to conform to the shape of the head, is so padded and arranged with elastic springs that a most delightful pillow is insured. The occupant of the ncipient bed has then but to touch a brass knob at his side, and leaning back he finds himself reclining at a comfortable angle on a couch which might be considered luxurious in a well appointed chamber The action of the chair when falling into its reclinng position throws up a padded leg-rest, and the occupant thus secures for his entire body the recumbent posture so essential to the enjoyment of repose. By an ingenious and simple contrivance the seats are arranged so as to revolve to suit the direction in which the cars may be moving. As we have already intimated, the cars contain

[For the Rail Road Journal.] SINKING PILES BY PNEUMATIC PROCESS.

Mr. Editor: Having been much interested in a reent visit to the site of the Rail Road Bridge, now beng constructed on the Wilmington and Manchester Rail Road, across the Pedee river, in Marion District, South Carolina, I send you a short account of it, as it may be interesting to some of your readers.

The difficulties encountered in building a permaneut bridge across large streams in the Southern country are very great. Frequently there is no building stone convenient; the foundations are had, and in many instances the bed of the river is a shifting sand or gravel; entermixed with logs and driftwood. Even the foundations were good, and stone convenient, he expense and risk of constructing coffer dams, early morning .- N. Y. until a pressure of 15 lbs. to the square inch is obtained within. The effect of this is to expel all the from the sand several feet below its surface. By means of a lock, (described below,) the workmen then descend into the cylinder and excavate the sand, logs, etc., removing them by means of bags through the air lock and wasting them into the river. After excavating within a foot or two of the lower edge of the cylinder, or until the air begins to escape below, several cocks are opened at the same moment, and the condensed air within the cylinder being allowed to escape rapidly, the cylinder sinks gradually by its

the surplus air to escape. It is made as follows:
Through the cap of the cylinder pile, a cast iron semi-cylinder, six feet long and four feet in diameter, is inserted; two feet being above, and four feet below, the plate head or cap. In the top of the lock is a man hole with a valve opening downwards. In the plane side of the lock, near the bottom, is another man hole, with a valve door opening into the cylinder. It is used as follows: The workmen, tools and bags, are first passed through the man hole into the air lock chamber, and the valve door closed .-The cock into the pile cylinder is then opened, the dense air rushes into the air chamber, closes the outer door valve firmly, and causes the door into the cylinder to open. The workmen then descend by adder to the bottom of the cylinder and shovel the pile sand into bags, which, when full, are passed into the air lock chamber. The door thereto being shut, the signal is given to the man on the outside, who opens the cock from the air lock to the open air, permits the dense air to escape, and the upper valve door falls open. The bags are then taken out, emptied and returned, as at first described. The

THE AFFGHAN LADIES.—A work by Mrs. Colin Mackenzie, upon "Life in India, recently published, contains a description of the Affghan ladies. It may be interesting to the American fair sex, as affording a striking contrast between the different standards of taste and beauty. Mrs. Mackenzie, who writes in an easy, coloqual style, says:

"On Thursday morning I was at breakfast when Mohammad Hasan Khan's ladies arrived. They came together in close palki, not muffled up, and one of Hasan Khan's retainers carefully shut the door after them. One was young and pretty, with a very sweet mouth. She had very lively, bright expressive, large dark eyes, tinged with antimony; beautiful white teeth, with rosy lips; a color in her cheek and a complexion not darker than a Spaniard's or Italian's. She had a sort of loose shirt of rose colored satin reaching to the hips, with full sleeves, and fastened at the throat; very wide green satin trowsers, so full that they looked like a petticoat; large gold rings. A RAILROAD STOPPAGE. - The Portland Argus, in an article relating to management upon railroads, and re-

At last one of the number, to bring matter to a point, said-

"Well, Mr. Ackerman, how much longer shall you stop, if you don't hear from the train ?" "I shall wait a week, sure," he responded; the end of that I shall decide what is next to be done."

Just then the train came thundering along at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, to make up for lost time; and had the solicitations of the passengers prevailed, we should not now be telling this story, for an inevitable collision would have sent all of us into the

EDITORS NOT APPRECIATED .- The San Francisco Commercial Advertiser, the editor of which was recently defeated in the election in that State, very coolly remarks upon the occasion, that the people don't appreciate editors. The engagement, however, of the beau, proved longer than the performance of the theatre. The audience retired, the lights were extinguished, and still Miss Biffin remained The box-keeper ventured and a row of silver bangles, six inches deep, on each arm, finished by a gold one; silver chains around her of the lights were out too, it was necessary she should neck; pretty gold earrings, something like the Ge. retire. LIFE OF HAYDON.--Life of Benjamin Robert Haydon, Historical Painter, from his autobiography and journals edited and compiled by Tom Taylor. This is a work of uncommon interest, describing the artistic career, the personal experience and the perpetual struggles and difficulties of the common interest, describing the artistic career, the personal experience and the perpetual struggles and difficulties of the celebrated English painter, drawn from his own antobiographical narratives in part, and from his copious journals, with brief editoral comments to preserve the continuity of the story. Haydon was a decided original. His journals give a wide portraiture of the man, and are marked by a deep pathos. They are full of anecdotes of celebrated men, and contain many valuable criticisms upon art. Haydon was in relations with the Duke of Wellington, Lord Brougham, Sir Robert Peel and other British Statesmen, of which he gives a variety of interesting reminiscences. His anecdotes gives a variety of interesting reminiscences. His anecdotes of Wadsworth Leigh Hunt, Kents, Shelly, Sir Walter Scott, as well as several cotemporary painters, are attractive features of the book, and make it pleasant reading. For sale by

THE DOG TEAM .- We saw an odd looking turnout on last Thursday morning in front of the Post Office, in the shape of a pair of big black dogs, harnessed to a sort of waggon, wherein was seated a man, selling pocket calendars, upon the merits of much to applaud, and many patriotic sentiments which he was holding forth to the great amusement of the congregated multitude, and the manifest disgust of his canine steeds, who lay down in harness, and showed their ivories at the little niggers. The mances may be as good as the promises, and that next time we saw the equipage, it was rushing round hereafter we may be able to speak as well of the Prethe corner of Front and Market, at a two-forty pace, with a whoop and a howl, and a bark and a growl, as if the dogs thought that the game go any faster, would turn round and eat up their ine as you would a hoss, and he waxes exceedingly snappish and cross; but it must be confessed, that (Printer's) devil.

The Navy of the United States, it is conceded, must ever constitute the most important arm of its physical force, with the extensive scaboard and vast commercial interests pertaining to the country. The ocean is the great highway of American enterprise, and with almost every other nation, in case of war, it must prove the field upon which the issue of battle will be decided. It is of the utmost importance, therefore, that the Navy of the United States should possess the greatest efficiency that can possibly be attained. Whatever may be the number or the size of our ships of war the first thing to be considered, is their efficiency. We may increase them to any extent, but without a more judicious economy, we shall make no corresponding accession of power or efficiency.
